Jars again please! I have fruit, lemons, sugar, and time, but need jam jars with matching lids so that I can clear some space in the freezer. Many thanks,

Ride+Stride

Last Saturday's event was blessed with good weather (a great improvement on last year which was marred with incessant rain) and the Penn Street Walkers were able to enjoy the Chilterns at their best. We included visits to three splendid churches in the Princes Risborough district where we were made most welcome by local parishioners also keen to support the work of the Bucks Historic Churches Trust.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank those of our own parish for responding to my earlier appeal for funds for the BHCT: so far, we have raised just over £250. If you have not already given but would still like to do so, please would you place your gift in one of our white envelopes clearly marking the front with a big "B". If you are a taxpayer, please do not forget to add your name, address and postcode or your regular contributor number. By way of a present, BHCT will return to our parish before Christmas one half of all that we raise including the element recovered through Gift Aid. My thanks again for your prayers and support.

Every year the PCC decides on two charities, one home and one overseas, to which we give a donation, and which we invite to send us a speaker. The charities for the coming year are Brain Research Trust, which funds world-class research into neurological conditions such as Alzheimers and Parkinsons, and Sightsavers, whose aim is to save the eyesight and so change the lives of people in Africa.

A three-week course run by Christians against Poverty for those interested in helping those in financial difficulties will begin on Monday 2 October at 7.30 pm at Holmer Green Baptist Church. Anyone interested please speak to Anthony Smith at the Baptist Church.

I have a copy of the Leprosy Mission Christmas Catalogue if anyone would like to borrow it. If you would like to order something please let me know, so that I can send a bulk order and we can save on postage. Judy Knight
